The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division acts to protect the public from unlawful business practices. We encourage citizens to file complaints with our office about suspected business practices so we can try to help resolve the dispute, as well as to help us identify areas for enforcement. While we can enforce the law against unfair and deceptive business practices on behalf of the general public, we do not have the authority or resources to act as a lawyer for consumers in individual disputes.

The information I have provided is true and accurate to the best of my knowledge.
